

Title: Communications Skills – Impactful Vocal, Written and Body Language

Duration: 60-90 minutes

Speaker: Deborah Jenkins, PHR, SHRM-CP

Course Description:

Without good communications, businesses cannot operate to their potential. Effective and efficient communication is vital to any business, whether verbal, written, or through body language. It is possible to get our point across clearly, respectfully, and properly without jeopardizing our professional communication skills. All employees represent your business and should leave a positive and lasting impression, internally as well as externally. There are many unwritten rules to professional communication etiquette, particularly now with the preponderance of technology venues. In addition to sharing points of view, listening skills are also a huge component towards successful message transmissions. Guidelines can help to identify what is appropriate, tactful, and respectful in various business communication settings, while giving recognition to varying styles, preferences, and personalities.

Misunderstandings infect relationships, including in the workplace. It isn't always just what you say but also how you say it and how you look that can cause angst. Attend this course to learn more about what you can do to improve your communication skills.
